Number of Associates Active (as of May 18, 2020)

More than 16,000 part-time and full-time associates are active in the Live Better U (LBU) program and more than 3,000 associates have graduated through the program. Associates have completed more than 131,042 college credits through LBU worth a total of $58.2 million.

Who is eligible?

These programs are available to all part-time and full-time U.S.-based associates starting on their first day of employment. That includes associates at our Walmart stores, Sam's Clubs and distribution centers in addition to associates at our corporate and e-commerce offices.

Benefits to the LBU ProgramAffordable

Under the program, the associate contribution toward a college degree is just $1 a day. Walmart will subsidize the cost of tuition, books and fees, eliminating the need for student loan debt and addressing one of the biggest hurdles that keep people from returning to college.

In addition, associates can jumpstart their path to completing a college degree through LBU by earning credit for paid training at our Walmart Academies. Hundreds of thousands of associates have already undergone skills training, saving associates both time and money in completing their LBU college degree.

Relevant

Walmart selected universities with a specialized focus on serving working adult learners and with a record of results. In addition, Walmart is collaborating with these universities to tailor curriculum to relevant skills that are in-demand for jobs and advancement across industries for today and in the future.

Accessible

Working with six universities that include both selective and open-access programs, Walmart provides all associates a place to start. The goal is for all associates who apply for admission to be accepted. These universities have a programmatic dedication to high graduation rates for their students.

Supported

From day one, associates will receive support from a Guild Education coach on everything from the application and enrollment process to selecting the appropriate degree. This kind of academic counseling has been shown to help students complete their degree.

Additional Educational and Training Offerings

College degrees and certificates in technology, health and wellness, supply chain management or business are parts of a broader approach to preparing the workforce to succeed today and into the future.

Other initiatives include:

- Developing a broad suite of offerings across roles and levels to help associates from frontline to executive levels develop job-related skills for advancement.
- Covering the complete cost for associates and eligible family members for earning a high school diploma.
- Offering associates and eligible family members access to tuition discounts, financial aid assistance and education coaching across Guild's broader academic marketplace of accredited, nonprofit universities, including schools such as Brandman University, the University of Arizona, Southern New Hampshire University and Purdue University Global.
- Giving access to professional development courses including college prep, leadership training and language learning.
